Summer clinics stress excellence

"Just one more time!", was a familiar phrase at summer clinics. Even though the work could be torture, the students were determined to practice until they were excellent. For many students summer was full of intense drilling which brought about perfection.

Drill Team attended the All-American Drill Team School at Kansas University in June, and brought home nine blue ribbons, plus first place in marching and pom pon routines out of 150 competitors. Brenda Ventrella proved that hard work pays off by being selected the most outstanding marcher. Melanie Swanson was runner up for most outstanding dancer.

To better understand marketing and retailing, four hard-working DECA students attended the National Career Development Conference in Houston, Texas, during the second week of May. Only first and second place winners from the Kansas State Competition were able to participate with the 7,500 in attendance. Lord & Taylor, Sears, and the Astro Hall were the sites of DECA competition. George Taylor, the Kansas State DECA President, was the voting delegate from Kansas.

Attending Casavant Cavalcade Drum Major Camp in Hastings, Nebraska, Janey Bell was voted most outstanding drum major among 90 participants. Janet Trentman, junior, also attended the camp. Students from the Midwest participated to improve directing and marching techniques. In learning new fundamentals of teaching, the drum majors practiced from 6:30 in the morning until late at night with only a few short breaks which enabled them to help band, Drill Team and Flag Team. "Although I learned a lot, being in 'Cornsville' during the hottest time of the summer is not the most exciting!", said Janet Trentman.

'Our Town' shows ordinary life

Stu Rakley sauntered out, notebook in hand, and removed the bare light bulb from the center of the empty stage. Stu, the stage manager, then set the stage, and proceeded to tell the audience the background information of the play within a play.

"Our Town", in three acts, told of daily life, love, marriage, and death in Grover's Corners, New Hampshire. Thorton Wilder centered the story around George Gibbs and Emily Webb, who are young lovers.

The cast consisted of 29 players, two of whom were children. Jeremy and Cori Snider, son and daughter of director Gerald Snider, made appearances as Wally Webb and Rebecca Gibbs. Performed October ninth thru the thirteenth, "Our Town" sold out all five productions and proved to be the most successful fall play.

Success depends on preparation

Everyone knows of the glamour and excitement that the Homecoming game, dance and ceremony presented. But how many realize all the time and preparations necessary to make Homecoming successful?

Sharon Brussell, the Goldette Senior Vice-President, was responsible for arranging the entire ceremony on October 5. Her responsibilities included everything from finding stairs for the "royalty" platform, to ordering and selecting the material used for the candidates' dresses. Also, under her direction, the theme "Making Memories" was developed.

Of her accomplishment, Sharon commented, "I put two months of myself into one night, and I could not have asked for a better reward." Not only was this a reward for Sharon, it proved meaningful for the Homecoming candidates, alumni, and fellow students.

Ceremony postponed by snowstorm

For the first time, Sweetheart royalty was to be announced at the annual dance on February 9. Traditionally, the royalty is crowned at a basketball game. However, because a snowstorm caused an unexpected school closing on the day of the election, the ceremony had to be postponed.

Dennise Boozer, Sweetheart Queen Stephanie Stanberry, first attendant and Sherry Clark, second attendant were elected on February 13 and officially crowned at a ceremony during halftime of the basketball game on February 19.

Goldette Lynn Bechtel carried the responsibility for the halftime ceremony; while StuCo took care of tbe dance, which included hiring the band, Nation to perform.

"Anything Goes"-a real toe-tapper

"In olden days, a glimpse of stocking was looked on as something shocking, but heaven knows, anything goes." Anything Goes, performed February 14,15 and 16, featured tap dancing, eight lead roles, a chorus and the "pit". Directed by Mr. Gerald Snider, the play centered around Hope Harcourt and Billy Crocker's romance. Even though Hope was engaged to Sir Evelyn, everything turned out with the help of Reno Sweeney and Moonface.

All cast members worked hard to make Anything Goes successful. Dance clinics, set up by Miss Sharon Wiber, taught cast members to tap. Miss Marie Lerner lead many practices so the chorus could achieve perfection. The Orchestra pit, conducted by Mr. Bruce Williams, had practices of their own in addition to regular practices in January and February.

David Claflin and Tom Teller, who played Ching and Ling, added comedy to Anything Goes with their ad-libbed slapstick. The Steward who insisted on perfection but did not get it, also added humor. This part was portrayed by Doug Jones.

Part of the reason Anything Goes was so successful was due to the compatibility of the cast. During their breaks from rehearsal, cast members danced and meditated together. The last performance was capped by a memorable buffet and disco party that lasted until early the next morning at Ted Manson's.

Crews spend hours on construction

Behind every curtain in a play there are not only actors and actresses awaiting their entrances, but crews waiting for their cues. The set for "Anything Goes" entailed many hours of work a day for almost two months to create a perfect atmosphere. The set was designed by Eric Frischer and engineered by Tom Roberts.

"The musical engineering entailed more sheer construction than the total sets of almost all past musicals combined," said Tom Roberts. Not only did the crews work diligently together, but they also managed to have a little fun. Each member attained a nickname and enjoyed many inside jokes and talking in a Yiddish dialect.

Choosing Royalty Proves Tedious

Admist the accomplishments of the high school years, there is a certain feeling of pride instilled in our minds. Yearbook recognized these accomplishments by choosing a Heritage Royalty.

Two Heritage staff members had the tedious job of reading through the mass of summaries to choose forty top seniors. The requirements were on the basis of involvement in at least three major activities, plus scholastic achievements. After limiting the list down, names were cut off and numbers were assigned to each summary. The Yearbook Staff juniors voted on ten boys and ten girls to obtain the top twenty students.

The honored royalty's pictures and summaries were adorned in the front hall so the students could make their decisions for the upcoming elections.

The process took two weeks, but ended in very good results, for Allyson Beardsley even ran out to get a new dress, just for her Heritage Royalty portrait.

Students watch 70's fade away

Besides all the goodbyes, love you forever's and miss you's at the end of the school year, the memories will linger on for years to come. Not only do the memories of high school remain in our minds but also remembrances of the past decade. Nobody knows what the new decade will entail but the past was full of trends and fashions that will never be forgotten.

Hairstyles changed to a shorter and curly style and clothes changed to western and more conservative styles, otherwise known as preppy. Sport cars and people jogging could be seen along the streets while other students could be seen dancing at discos or talking for hours on the phone. A few students participated in beauty pageants, but many found happiness in a steady boyfriend or girlfriend. No matter what people did to fill their time, the past decade will not be forgotten for there will be memories forever.

Kids cut loose After hours!

Monday morning blahs could be so depressing, for it seemed as though Friday would never come. But before you knew it the day had hit and you struggled through the last unbearable class forgetting about the past weeks troubles and anticipating a fun weekend. Although Saturday and Sunday afternoons could be enjoyable, the real excitement did not set in until the evening. Night life offered a wide variety of events to take part in. Activities such as school parties, rollerskating, cruising, sports, dates, concerts and working were a few choices people had for the weekend.

But once the hustle of night life was over, it was time to face another Monday morning, and once again wait for the weekend.

Classics come back

The classics came back stronger than ever. Blazers of all kinds — corduroy, tweed, plaid and solid were complimented by slit or pleated skirts. Either socks and casual shoes or textured hose and spiked heels completed these outfits.

Straight legged blue jeans with intricate stitching on the pockets were basic in most wardrobes. This casual style was frequently topped with a gold or silver threaded blouse.

Styles in dresses shifted toward the sweater look. This proved to be a comfortable and practical style.

Pullover sweaters also continued to be popular. Velour was the most common type of sweater since it could have been worn with skirts, jeans and dress pants.

Disco dies out; styles change

With the release of "Saturday Night Fever" the disco craze swept through America. Special accessories, clothes and discotheques rose throughout cities in support of the new trend. But, disco was short lived, for people have found more enjoyment through other kinds of music. Many people remained loyal to rock and roll and formed anti-disco groups in cities throughout the country. Max Floyd, a disc jockey at KY102 started an anti-disco organization in Kansas City called the Rock and Roll Army.

Students were seen looking through record store racks for a wide variety of music. Mellow, country, pop, and hard rock were a few climbing the top forties. Barry Gibb and his group the Bee Gee's remained on top through-out all the changes in music.

Assemblies make school days fun

Although assemblies were few in number, they were big in variety. Assorted pep and music assemblies provided relief from the drudgery of the school day.

The pep rallies, attended by second hour classes, gave the student body a chance to meet our sports teams and coaches. Pep rallies also featured original cheers from the yell leaders and the unusual introductions of the Homecoming king candidates by the girl candidates.

A special holiday program presented by the choir department took a new twist as members of the Heritage singers played kazoos. Other groups that contributed to the holiday spirit were A Cappella, Chanticleers and Varsity Men.

Perhaps the favorite concert of all was the English recording group Shooting Star's performance. While assemblies provided entertainment, more were needed during the course of the year.

World crises, inflation end '70s

As the 1970's came to a close, citizens of the world watched and waited as students in Iran took over the American Embassy. World tensions increased after the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan. China was no longer an enemy, but rather a friend as we joined hands in peace.

Inflation skyrocketed at an overall rate of thirteen percent. A gallon of gas cost more than a Big Mac, yet both continued to be popular sources of fuel. Gold prices fluctuated during the year, sometimes reaching as much as 857 dollars an ounce.

As for the sports scene, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania proved to be the dominant city as the Pirates won the World Series and the Steelers won the Super Bowl.

Groups display warm welcome

With the responsibility of administering hospitality to newcomers to South, the Patriettes and the Show Me South Club have their work cut out for them.

The Patriettes was a new group this year. The purpose of this group was to act as hostesses to visiting students and organizations. They act as assistants to the faculty, administration and the Parent-Teacher Club. All money collected this year was donated to the Shawnee Mission P.T.A. Clothing Campaign.

New students to South can find friendship and understanding in students of the Show Me South Club. With over 50 members, the club had many social activities, such as a luncheon for new students, breakfasts, and a traditional pizza party. This year's fundraiser was called "Rent-A-Kid."

Camera changes personalities

Smile! Cheese! Hey, anyone want their pictures taken? Just by uttering these few words, a crowd begins to form around the photographer. For the next few frames, he becomes your best friend. Suddenly those who were once shy and quiet, become loud and wild, just to get their picture in the yearbook. For those who fall into this category, these two pages are devoted to you.

People have been known to climb on buses, build pyramids, perform headstands and other often crazy things for the flash of a camera. If asked if they had performed these acts, the common answer was, "Me?" But a camera never lies.

Not picking on anyone directly, we present you with these pictures. (You Hams!)

New StuCo Crew Worked Together

After attending a seminar in Florida during the summer, the Student Council officers were ready for the hustle and bustle that the beginning of the school year brought.

Consisting of 55 people-four officers, six committee chairmen and 45 in the general assembly, StuCo worked together to find new ideas for fundraising and social events.

A magazine sale, blood drives, and the sale of student directories were only a few of the many fundraisers that StuCo planned. StuCo also sponsored the W.P.A. Dance in December, as well as the Sweetheart Dance in February.

StuCo better utilized its committees this year. After proposing a bill, it was sent to the appropriate committee. That committee then discussed the bill and decided whether or not it should be sent to the general assembly for voting.

Categories team masters facts

Categories is a group of students who enjoy learning trivial facts. Not only do they study and memorize these facts, but they apply this knowledge in competition against other trivia-interested students.

The team, coached by Mrs. Barbara Seibel, started in the fall by holding informal meetings in which new members were always welcome to participate.

Captain Greg Azorsky and Co-Captain Eddie Speer, veteran Heidi Kraus, and rookie Elliot Gorelick were among the top scorers during a very successful year.

Students Prepare For Business World

DECA — Distributive Education Clubs of America is a group comprised of Marketing and Retailing students. Besides learning about the business world, DECA competed in both a state competition held in Wichita, and a national competition held in Miami this year. Also this year, the seniors worked on a shoplifting project which they took to area junior highs. DECA did many fund-raising projects, such as selling candy. The purpose of this is to help the students better understand competition in business.

Another group involved in business is OEA — Office Education Association. This group teaches many of the tasks needed by secretaries in the business world. OEA also provides many job opportunities for its members.

Girls provide needed spirit

Every group needs support and encouragement. Both the Goodtimers and the Pinners provide spirit as well as practical skills.

If you're a swimmer, the Goodtimers will help you with judging, timing, and recording. Headed by swim coach, Bruce Bove, this group participates at every home meet for girls and boys.

If you're a wrestler, the Pinners, headed by wrestling coach Guy Malone, will quench your thirst with a water bottle besides offering plenty of enthusiasm. The Wrestling Managers perform the same skills as the Pinners along with the added duty of organizing fund raisers.

Goldettes have own magic recipe

If you're looking for beauty, talent, wit, the ability to work hard and a lovely smile, try our easy recipe.

Take sixty enthusiastic sophomore, junior, and senior girls. Add three cups of energy for 6 a.m. practices. Stir in the two cups of creativ ity for making signs and decorating lockers. Dump in a ton of patience to handle Homecoming and Sweetheart production problems. Sprinkle on some talent for performing stand routines at boys' football and basketball games. Let sit for one summer. Next sift in the guidance of Mrs. Trupp, Mr. Millard, and Mrs. Segebrecht. Add a yellow skirt, sweater and saddles. As a finishing touch, paint a huge smile and draw willing hands and feet. The finished product . . . the Goldettes, the new spirit organization.

Group performs banner routines

Raiderettes, a group consisting of six girls, performed with the Marching Band at the football games and the Pep Band at the basketball games.

The routines, which were composed by the members themselves, required real rifles, and skillfully incorporated the school banner into the routine.

Sponsored by Mrs. Anna Crabtree, with Susan Jones as captain, the group practiced first and second hours, and after school Thursday during football season. Also for the first time, sophomores were chosen as Raiderettes.

In the spring, the group went to various junior highs in the district for many performances.

Southettes have fun with sisters

It was 2:30 a.m. and the silent forms drifted into the still houses. Suddenly the girls' sleep was rudely interrupted as they were yanked out of bed. Once again Flag Team big sisters had struck. After being told to come as they were, they were taken to Denny's for hot chocolate. This was just one exploit the girls had with the big sister-little sister program.

Before the school year began, each second-year member was assigned a rookie to help ease her way and to give her gifts and encouragement.

Even the way they discovered who their big sisters were, was exciting. Seven girls in front of seven doors simultaneously flung open the closets to find their big sisters zipped into sleeping bags.

Besides having parties and kidnap-breakfasts, the girls also worked hard to earn new green and white flags.

Not just another pretty face

It's time someone realized they're more than just pretty faces. Being on Drill Team requires more than just wearing satin green and gold skirts and having a lovely smile. The girls work hard all summer, three mornings a week from 6 to 7:30 to perfect a marching and dance style that was recognized for its excellence at the state festival, where one judge said they were probably the best group in the state of Kansas. That hard work also paid off as they received a one rating at district, as well as state contest. Also, remember somebody has to pay for those uniforms and pom pons. Maybe being sprayed with a fire extinquisher wasn't exactly what the girls had in mind when they dressed as foreign waitresses to work at Worlds of Fun, but to earn money the girls even smiled through that. The big sisters also spent endless hours embroidering and appliqueing bags to give first-year members to carry all their supplies in.

So, remember as they perform their intricate dance routines at football and basketball games, they're more than just pretty faces.

Play it again marching band

This year, as every year, the Marching Band and Pep Band have kept spirit high at the various sports activities at South.

The Marching Band, with senior and junior majorettes, Jane Bell and Janet Trentman, respectively, once again proved to be the highest rated band in the district. The band collected high honors at both the state and district festivals. Performing during halftime, the band withstood both the weather and many hours of hard work.

The Green Pep Band, headed by Dave Strong, and the Gold Pep Band, headed by Jeff Dyer and Anne Prinz, kept enthusiasm flowing at basketball games and pep assemblies.

Girls support winning seasons

Fall was a busy time, especially for sixteen girls who were chosen as Junior Varsity and Sophomore Cheerleaders. The girls were responsible for attending many sporting events. Although Sophomore and JV Cheerleaders devoted much time to sophomore and JV events, they, too could be found at most varsity games. The JV squad cheered during the third quarter of varsity games.

Under the assistance of Mrs. Linda Segebrecht and Mrs. Katie Alexander, the girls continuously practiced to maintain their impressive performance. They also planned several breakfasts for the two squads.

Very enthusiastic, full of spirit, Sophomore and JV Cheerleaders led South's teams to victorious seasons.

Cheering Squads provide spark

Given the award of excellence by the National Cheerleading Association, the Varsity Cheerleaders continued to uphold the top honor five years in a row. Held at Baker University, they competed against 520 cheerleading squads. Under the leadership of Mrs. Linda Segebrecht, captain Kim Thurman, and co-captain Sherry White, the squad practiced everyday. Along with their male counterparts, the Yell Leaders, the two squads worked together, combining their skills of spirit and enthusiasm to entertain at football games.

Arranging their plans around their cheering events, the girls had to budget their time to see that they kept satisfactory grades. Their visibility to the student body and the public in general, clearly defines their leadership role at South.

Dr. Welch is a Welcome addition

It is necessary for the good of any organization to experience change in the leaders. This is true of school administration as well. Dr. Robert Welch, Associate Principal, became a welcome addition to our administration as we said good-by to Ms. Jo Carroll.

Dr. Welch has some interesting philosophies and an interesting extra-curricular hobby that reflects these. Although he only has been writing professionally for two years, he has already had several articles published. He takes a serious subject and treats it humorously without losing the gravity of the situation. One of his articles, "Go Tell the Spartans" is about school leaders. Dr. Welch feels while school leaders, or spartans, are extremely important, average students need to be given credit, too. Another article reflecting his ideas is "Dr. Changelove", in which a school administrator comes in and changes policies, then leaves before he has to handle the problems that come with them. His most recent article is a poem published in the "Phi Delta Kappa", which is a parody based on "The Raven". "Lunch in the Lounge" uses the exact meter and rhyme of Raven. Dr. Welch thinks high school students are basically good, so his goal is to get to know them and give them a chance. A friendly, open man, he is a welcome addition and in Dr. Nichols' words, "We're fortunate to have him."

Career program is worth the time

Due to lack of awareness many students overlook beneficial classes and programs. The Career Center is just one that has been by-passed and yet it can be extremely helpful.

Sophomore: "You're kidding. I didn't even know we had a career center."

Senior: "Yeah, not only do we have one, but it's one of the seven model career program centers in the U.S."

Sophomore: "Well, what can this center do for me?"

Senior: "Besides offering a ten-day class which you can take during your study hall, it has tons of literature on different, unique jobs. It can also help with job shadowing and job placement."

Sophomore: "I don't really know what I'm going in to. If I take the course will I know by the end?"

Senior: "Maybe, but probably not. It's designed more to make you start thinking about a career. In the ten days you'll cover career-making decisions, goals and aptitudes, your abilities and personality traits, work values and how to write a resume and conduct yourself in an interview."

Sophomore: "It sounds great. How do I get in?"

Senior: "You can take it before school or during your study hall. You really should try. Dennis is great and he works in conjunction with the whole district to give you the most information possible. Give it a try. I think it will be worth your time.

Lunchroom has creative touch

"It's different. I don't know what it is!" As you sit through lunch, study hall or ACT's in the cafeteria, you probably find yourself staring at the east wall and thinking the same thing. The mural was designed as a classroom assignment in 1971 by Greg Hermete, a senior in Mrs. Shirleyan Baptist's painting class that year. With Greg supervising the project, teachers and classmates set to work, cooperating to its completion, seven months later. There are many ideas behind the mural, mostly reflecting life in the early seventies. The Viet Nam War, ecology, sports, flower children, and communication can be seen in the painting. So the next time you find yourself in the cafeteria, take time to really have a look at what's been hanging on the wall all these years.

Sophs prepared for road ahead

Each year, new sophomores face the task of mastering high school English. "I think it's harder than freshman English in junior high," one sophomore confided. The main objective of sophomore English is to introduce the newcomers to the mainstream of high school English. Emphasis is placed primarily on the basic fundamentals of writing, such as style, vocabulary and grammar. There are a variety of methods in which to teach these necessities. Reading aloud play texts, frequent themes, and of course, weekly vocabulary tests enforce the basic fundamentals needed for the long road waiting ahead.

Activities keep teachers busy

Students do not usually get the opportunity to see their teachers in an atmosphere other than the classroom. For this reason, they sometimes do not realize that teachers do other things besides teach.

The junior English teachers are very involved in outside activities. For example, Mrs. JoAnn Murnane lives on a small horse ranch and breeds horses, while Mrs. Fern Coffin likes to braid rugs and work outdoors. Mr. Jeff Harryman's activities include playing the piano and raquetball, whereas Mr. Scott Calder spends his time coaching track and sophomore football. Cooking and doing needlepoint are hobbies of Mrs. Jan Falley, and Mrs. Janet Andrew is a golfer and part-owner of a house-moving business. It is reassuring to find that teachers are people, too.

Ghosts fade but memories remain

The invitation read: Date: May 25th Time: 7:30 a.m. Place: Wonderland. The phantoms of English 12 were meeting for the traditional farewell party for seniors on final exams day. The apparitions arrived en masse promptly at 8 a.m. after taking a bus from Wonderland, the common meeting ground. They drifted in and out of Ms. Mary Alice Daniels', Mrs Connie Volks', Ms. Jane Long's and Mr. David Gray's rooms. Finally the ghosts came into Mrs. Rowena Turk's room where the AP students were taking the Advanced Placement test in hopes of quizzing out of some college time. Hamlet was in the corner talking to Oedipus about his complex. The pilgrims from Canterbury came in and commented with admiration on the students who had stuck out the trials of senior English. Anna Karenina arrived looking as gorgeous as she had before her suicide. Hamlet quickly floated over and began discussing the merits of "to be or not to be."

The phantoms watched as the seniors sweated through the exam that covered thousands of pages. They realized all this was done voluntarily because the English requirement for graduation could easily be met with drama and speech classes.

As the students finished their final essays the apparitions faded away.

Foreign language explores careers

Many people do not realize the importance of taking a foreign language until it is too late. This year the foreign language teachers tried to emphasize this point.

The district taped a series of television programs on different careers that require the use of a foreign language. Each of the programs were shot on location at various companies that require their employees to speak a foreign language. All foreign language students watched this series to give them a better understanding of how they may use their foreign language skills in the future.

They do dig math

There once were twelve teachers from South, whose fame was by word of mouth.
They each had their quirks,
which brought plenty of smirks.
They taught mathematics at South.

Mass tutoring took up their time,
One looked at rocks,
while some worked with jocks,
but as teachers they all were sublime.

One coached hitting balls with a whack,
Mr. Voorhees, another, coached track.
Mr. Mischlich was boss.
Ms. Witherspoon, the lone woman, sometimes felt lost, and Mr. Mentzer's dry humor was cracked.

The W's taught Calculus and Trig, two hard courses; their classes weren't big.
Dennis' computers were fun,
Mr. Millard made puns, and math, they all really dig.

Strange sounds heard from 264

Ever walked by room 264 between classes and stopped dead in your tracks? The music Mr. Dawson plays has that effect on many students. "I play them because it's one of my main chances to listen to my records. Besides, the phonograph is the only musical instrument I play," he chuckled. Music appreciation is another reason for the daily playing of an album. Students are exposed to a variety of music, from Mozart to Woodstock, educating them by expanding their awareness and familiarity for later years. Biology is involved too. Wolf calls, whale songs and bird songs are sometimes heard. "I like it. You never know what you'll hear," one student smiled.

Social studies help start upswing

Everyone complains of poor teachers and classes, and everyone has heard horror stories of students graduating without being able to read or do simple arithmetic. Because school systems seem to be on a down-swing the Social Studies Department has started a revitalization program. The program has three main objectives; strengthening the academic program, allowing for professional growth of the staff, and to increase student interest in social studies. In order to achieve these goals, the steering committee, headed by Mr. John Seevers with assistance from Mr. Larry Gould, Ms. Sheila Norton, and Mr. Mike Ruggles, suggested programs for interdisciplinary cooperation, improvement of current course offerings, and the addition of advanced placement classes in American History, European History, and American Government. In order to get more students aware and interested in Social Studies, the committee developed quarterly themes, including Global Relations, the Economy, Politics and Government, and Change, and then drove the ideas home using speakers, panels, and films. One of their first projects was to display posters that illustrated great thoughts. They weren't trying to sell anything, they were just attempting to get students thinking about these ideas.

Maybe with more programs like this there is hope for schools yet.

NJROTC prepares future leaders

This year, as every year, NJROTC has tried to teach students the special qualities of leadership and discipline.

NJROTC has helped prepare students for military leadership. It also holds opportunities for scholarships. More importantly, NJROTC has taught students to deal with and work with others. NJROTC teaches them how to be leaders, and enforces strict discipline. These qualities will be valuable to the NJROTC students whether they decide to enter the military or not.

New activities make PE livelier

For many people, physical education helps break up the boredom of the class routine. PE not only helps students physically, but it also helps them learn to work with others as a team.

This year, outside of doing such activities as basketball, volleyball, and track, the PE classes went bowling every other Friday for a change of pace. The PE classes also went to Fox Hill to learn how to play raquetball. Adding variety to the physical education curriculum can add enjoyment to a routine school day and keep students from losing interest in PE class.

Business prepares for outside world

Every now and then you may realize that outside the warm security of high school looms the big, bad working world. If you're not properly prepared, it probably scares you too. The business department is designed to help get rid of those shakes by preparing you for college, a job, or just experience in personal finance. Students graduating from thorough courses in Bookkeeping, Accounting, Office Education and Data Programming can easily be placed directly into a skilled job. These classes can also help students quiz out of time in college. As the economy gets worse and worse these business courses will become more and more practical and helpful. Ms. Lois Supple, department head, stressed the goals of the business center are geared toward vocations or help for college so you need no longer fear the terrifying outside working world.

Home Ec teachers offer variety

Susie finally finished her first dress. Decked with fancy buttons, bright thread and leftover scraps of material, Susie thought her Barbie doll was ready for anything. Little did she know that someday she would sew her own clothes.

As the price of clothes increase and the styles change, more and more people are learning to sew. Learning the basics at an early age like Susie, is not unusual, for more advanced courses may be taken in school.

By the time Susie entered high school she was an experienced seamstress, but learned much more by taking Sports and Separates and a tailoring class.

The Home Economics Department consists of five teachers who teach a wide variety of classes ranging from amateur to professional.

DRIVER EDUCATION

Teachers require special patience

In some cases, turning a beginning driver loose in a car is like playing with a lethal weapon. That is why it takes much patience and understanding to be a driver education teacher.

If someone other than a driver ed teacher tried to teach a beginning driver how to drive, the phrase that the beginner would most often hear is, "What are you trying to do, kill me!" Anyone else but a driver ed teacher would most likely be extremely nervous and would make a beginner feel very ill at ease. Driver ed teachers know how to keep calm in a car with a beginning driver. They are sympathetic and they almost never panic. It takes a special person to teach driver ed.

Artistic talent grows in classes

Although artistic talent is somewhat rare, some people have it, but are never given a chance to develop it. However, this is not the case with South students.

South students are offered art and industrial arts courses such as Painting, Jewelry, Photography,Drawing, Wood Tech., and Drafting. Because these courses are provided, artistic talent which may have otherwise gone to waste can be developed to the fullest.

Art and photography students also get the chance to display their work to be judged by their peers. There is a large display case near the auditorium which allows passersby to view the contents. Students were also able to enter their work in the South Art Fair and the District Art Fair.

Through these methods, students can learn practical art skills that they may use the rest of their lives.

Chalk up another award for band

As expected, the bands lived up to their reputation, chalking up another year of superior ratings and honors. The year began with marching band and a series of halftime shows. Hours of practice landed the band a superior rating at statewide competition in Wichita and at distric competition, hosted by South. With the end of the football season, auditions for symphonic and concert bands were held. Along with the usual concerts, both bands participated in the state music contest on April 2, keeping tradition with excellent performances. Symphonic band was selected for the third time in its history to perform for the Kansas Music Educators Association in Wichita, an impressive honor for both band and director, Mr. Jim Cochran. For two weeks in September, South hosted a band of German students from Bietigheim-Bissingen. In return, the symphonic and jazz band will travel to the city for an exchange during June. Besides being a performing group, band gives students a chance to meet and enjoy the company of other students interested in instrumental music.

Jazz taught as American Heritage

The United States has always been considered by the rest of the Western World as lacking in culture with few good writers or musicians. Jazz is the only musical art form to originate in the U.S. JAZZ — The word can mean anything from slow, mournful blues, to an up beat Dixieland or ragtime sound to a cool swing style. JAZZ — It brings to mind the names of some of the greatest musicians; Louis Armstrong, Count Basie, Duke Ellington, Woody Herman, and Charlie Parker. JAZZ — It has a unique vocabulary with such words as dig, jam, riff, blow, combo and chart.

It is an American Heritage and it is appropriate that it is offered in the curriculum. Because it is so difficult to interpret and play jazz, entrance to the class is strictly by audition, with only the top musicians comprising the band. Improvisation, the one thing that really sets jazz apart, is taught, as well as interpretation, style and even arrangement. Among other things the band was invited to play in Germany during the summer. By playing charts written by great musicians and learning to understand and perform this unique form of music, the students are exposed to the one cultural art form the U.S. has a right to call its own — JAZZ.

Strings keep busy

If you've ever attended any concerts, such as Vespers or Masterworks, you've undoubtedly heard the orchestra fill the auditorium with the sound of plinking strings, beautiful basses and fluttering flutes. Around the middle of January, pit orchestra forms and undertakes the task of accompaniment for the musical. "Anything Goes" required a jazz sound so a non-orchestral instrument, the saxophone, was used to produce it. Besides performing at school, orchestra plays in the state music contest every spring at Shawnee Mission East. The orchestra shares their director, Mr. Bruce Williams, with several district elementary schools and Nallwood Junior High. Mr. Bruce Williams also devotes his time as director for the Overland Park Orchestra. Maintaining an excellent standard is the objective of the director and orchestra members.

Choirs help new Students fit in

One of the things that a sophomore needs most is to feel accepted. He needs to get involved in an activity; become part of a group.

This is where a group like choir can help sophomores. Concert choir and the Sophomore Mixed Ensemble, under the direction of Mr. Larry Stetler, and the Sophomore Treble Ensemble, under the direction of Ms. Marie Lerner, allow the sophomores to become part of a group and utilize their vocal talents at the same time.

Through these groups, sophomores can become involved in an interscholastic activity and form those new friendships that can be so difficult to make.

Advanced Theory prepares musicians

What's an augmented fragment with rearticulation and octave displacement of the first motive? Ask any of the students in the AP Music Theory class and they should be able to fill you in. Music Theory meets seventh hour and is taught by Ms. Marie Lerner. Theory is a college level course designed for the serious student who intends to continue music in college, or simply wishes to advance an already advanced knowledge of music. Students are given the opportunity to take the AP test for college credit at the end of the year. Students enrolled in the course are primarily in a band or choral group and have a piano or instrumental background. Senior Jim Martin, enduring the frustrations that come with an AP Class, chose to take the course two years and is now in an independent study of theory. So for all music scholars, here's a chance to excell. "It's hard, but it's really kind of fun," reports Janey Bell, a senior. "I'm glad I'm taking it. It should help a lot in the future."

Group's harmony is simply poetic

The girls, they all gather to sing, the message that music can bring.
They are called Chanticleers,
Green robes they do wear,
And sing songs that are fit for a king.

Ms. Lerner brought voices to one.
The learning had only begun.
Perfection with ease,
It came like a breeze —
They did it and even had fun.

They keep busy throughout the whole year.
Vespers bring holiday cheer.
More concerts galore —
They're never a bore.
You're glad that you came to hear.

They sang at a Kings basketball game.
which added much to their fame.
Our national song
they sang clearly and long and impressed all of those who came.

The girls join together each day,
and sing a whole hour away.
They are called Chanticleers,
with voices so fair
and they've all become good friends to stay.

Warblers combine singing and fun

Have you ever heard of an A Cappellican, or a Hermitage Swinger? Does it sound crazy to have a whole choir deliver singing telegrams, A Cappellagrams, or to have Marx Brother's look-alikes running around to advertise a movie night? It's just the A Cappella and Heritage singers having a good time while they strive to earn money for a spring tour. A close knit group, these talented students perform not only for parents and friends, but also at nursing homes, junior highs and elementary schools. They even go caroling. Their big performance is the holiday concert, Vespers, that includes a beautiful candle-lit procession. Rehearsals seem to be going smoothly and Allyson Beardsley commented, "We even get to go to lunch early . . . in the past we didn't always even make it to lunch." They not only sing together but party together as well. They have hayrides, skating parties and after-the-concert get-togethers. While they love singing, the close friendships they develop are even more important, and sometimes carry on through lifetimes.

The name remains mystery to most

"What do you have next hour?"

"Forensics."

"Uh...forensics? What's that?"

Many people don't have the slightest idea what forensics is. Coached by Ms. Sandi Gresham, the class is structured around speaking and acting abilities. The student competes not only with his own personal expectations, but also in tournaments in front of judges. There are six events under which a speaker may compete. They are dramatic intrepretation, or a sort of monologue; oratories, or persuasive speaking on a topic; informative speeches; extemporary, where a topic is drawn and a speech is prepared on the topic after thirty minutes of planning; and an impromptu duet act, with a topic drawn and thirty minutes of duo planning. Speeches are usually short and almost always interesting. So, for all those, who have ever said "uh..forensics?", now you know.

Radio station becomes reality

New this year was South's long awaited radio station KSMS. Ms. Sandi Gresham supervised the radio station, and Karen Samuels was station manager. KSMS, which was run almost entirely by the students involved, was on the air during the lunch periods in the cafeteria. The students set up the programming, did all the engineering, and acted as disc jockeys. Because of the radio station, students were able to display their talents in a new way.

Students were also able, once again to develop their talents in the theatre department. This year, as every year, the theatre department continued to put on fine productions, such as Mandala, Winter One Acts, and the fall play Our Town.

A new course was offered in the Language arts department this year. Radio and TV was designed to teach students the basics of broadcasting.

Students deserve awards received

Recently there has been controversy surrounding the legitimacy of such standardized test as the SAT, ACT and PSAT. Students take the Preliminary Scholarship Aptitude Test, PSAT, in the October of their junior year. On the basis of these test scores they may be awarded scholarships through National Merit. Many feel that those who receive National Merit semi-finalist and commended awards get too much recognition for a test that doesn't really measure intelligence. Perhaps, some people overlook the fact that most of these students have an excellent academic record as well as being involved in many extra-curricular activities. The semi-finalist can be spotted on the football field, in the journalism room and on stage performing with choral and instrumental groups. The commended group can boast of a myriad of talents including playing with a rock or symphonic band, performing with flag team, singing, acting, speaking, writing or playing sports. Maybe the results of these test aren't an accurate measure of future potential but everyone has an equal opportunity to score well and based on their past academic record and achievements, these individuals certainly deserve the scholarships and recognition they receive.

Staff creates bi-weekly paper

"What stories are you doing this issue?" "Who's going to get that ad?" "I'm going to the printer tonight." These phrases were most often heard when the Patriot staff got together fifth hour.

There is a lot more to putting the Patriot together than most people realize. Some think that the staff just writes stories, takes pictures, and the printer really puts the paper together. This idea is totally wrong. Not only does the Patriot staff write stories and take pictures, but the members are also asked to sell ads, since they help finance the papers. The Patriot staff also does its own graphics, and the editors design and lay out the pages themselves. Editor-in-chief Karen Glickstein and sponsor Ms. Linda Barber oversee the activities of the staff.

Honor societies hail achievement

South students have always received recognition and honors for their achievements. This year, as in the past, students were honored for their academic and extracurricular achievements through National Honor Society, and journalism students were honored for their achievements through Quill and Scroll.

This year NHS revised their constitution, changing the requirements for becoming a member. NHS also held several fund raisers this year including the Shooting Star concert and selling Raider mugs and jackets.

Quill and Scroll is an honorary society for journalism students. To become a member, the student must be a senior in his second or third year of journalism who makes significant contributions to a school publication, and exhibits high academic achievement.

This is our spot.

This is our room, our space. This is the area where endless hours are spent attempting to accomplish the impossible. This is the scene of people crying and tempers flaring as a deadline draws near. This is the site that is noisy after the rest of the school is silent because work must be completed to beat the clock. This is a quiet sanctuary or a hectic world of confusion as different creative talents clash. It is here that a new advisor, Ms. Linda Barber, learns the "tricks of the trade", and editor-in-chief, Karen Samuels, learns what the word "editor" stands for. Sophomores gain from experience

The Sophomore football teams, the Green coached by Mr. Bill Stiegmeier and Mr. Scott Calder and the White coached by Mr. Dave Oliver, have come a long way this year. The coaches goal was to take the players previously from different junior high school teams and unite them into one. This was a hard job for the coaches; the sophomores were not expecting the hard practices and long hours. High School football proved surprisingly difficult, however, the players kept their spirits up and by the end of the season played well as a team.

The regular season record for the Green team was six wins and two losses. Seven wins with no losses was the final record for the White team.

Coaches of the two teams attribute their winning seasons to the players' enthusiasm. Coach Stigmeier commented on how well the team members adapted to playing different positions.

JV sets goals

"Let's beat 'em," was the everlasting cry of the Junior Varsity Football Team.

Under the leadership of Coach Bruce Roach and Coach Bill King, the J.V. team finished the season undefeated.

The team had outstanding talent. Both Dan Christie and Scott Kirkendall were able to show their passing ability on the field. The consistency of tailback Scot Sparks helped to move the ball toward the goal line. Defensive linemen Scott Zolotor and Jeff Henson were key contributors to the team's victories.

The never-ending battle to win was highlighted by beating Topeka West by the score of 53-0.

Looking forward to next year, the J.V. team is sure to be a strong contender for the state title.

Talent highlights difficult season

Coach John Davis, who completed his fourteenth year at the Raider helm, confronted the new season with a low senior turnout. After winning the first three games of the season with optimistic hope, the Varsity footbal team fell to a 4-5 record.

Yet, the team was not lacking in outstanding talent from individual players. Eric Buchanan led the offense and was responsible for vital yardage and touchdown points. Quarterback Chris Laddish proved to be admirable in his offensive guidance and led in defensive tackles. Runningbacks George Taylor and Kurt Ream added to the varsity attack with their more than agile rushing abilities. The line play was bolstered by transfer seniors John and Dave Anderson. Bruce Kallmeyer found his spotlight in kicking, winning two games in close fourth quarters, while Duke Lohr punted an excellent year, with an average over forty yards.

The squad ended the year suffering frustrating defeats, losing by less than seven points in each instance.

Girls conclude victorious season

"We can do it," was the phrase used by many on the Girls' Cross Country team. The team had spirit unmatched by any other team.

Under the worthy command of Coach Verlyn Schmidt and Coach Greg Wilson, the girls excelled in their running abilities. Led by the dynamic duo of junior Dede Lawless and senior Lori Schick, the girls were easily able to keep up with all their opponents, finishing first on several occasions. Going into the State Championship in Manhattan with great expectations, the girls were proud to finish in second place. Lawless ran an outstanding race, placing fifth in a field of many.

The future looks bright for the Girls' Cross Country team. Returning letterwinner, Dede Lawless will continue to be an outstanding force for the harriers.

Long run leads harriers to success

Let a cross country member take you for one of his afternoon jaunts and you will see why this was a determined squad. First, down College with a hopeful outlook, to old Switzer road, up to 119th street, over to Nall, down Nall to 107th and finally collapsing in front of the gymnasium.

With guidance from Coaches Verlyn Schmidt and Greg Wilson, the Junior Varsity and C Team learned this journey with ease. Everyday after school, a squadron of harriers could be seen pounding the streets of Overland Park and the grounds of Shawnee Mission Park. The coaches knew from years of experience what needed to be done and in the long run, the boys thanked them for their far from subtle prodding.

There were enjoyable moments however, pancake dinners and special times with fellow team members. The season ended successfully with both squads losing only one meet. The talents of David Duffin, Tim Rohrer and Matt Jackson for JV, along with Tuen Ebber and Rick Macisaac attributed to the fine scoring.

Pain squad rules on victory road

Running down an endless path, body aching, and heart pounding. These are some of the feelings of the runners on the Cross Country Team, coached by Mr. Verlyn Schmidt.

The team practices three hours a day, six days a week. Their practices may have something to do with the nickname the team has acquired, The Pain Squad.

The team ranked first in regular season and regional competition. They placed second at State, held in Manhattan, Kansas. Brent Steiner set a state record for the two mile run, racing in at 9.01 minutes.

After receiving the All-American Award last year, Steiner is expected to be presented with the award again, as is Steve Smith, who last year received the Honorable All-American.

'Thank God for nice weather'

The Girl's Varsity Tennis Team had a tough load to pull this year, with only five returning seniors, Karen Bunag, Julie Grauer, Lori Siebert, Anne Scott, and Kathy Thum.

Out of ten regular season duels, the girls won nine, earned second in Regionals, and tied for first in State.

Bunag captured first in State singles for the third year in a row, the eight consecutive year we have earned a first place State award. The doubles team of Patty Lee and Jill Stanphill took fourth in State competition.

Coach Gabrielson expects a strong varsity squad next year with the return of Mary Closser, Patty Bodine, Pallen Lee, Patty Lee, Allison Malm, and Jill Stanphill.

Commenting on the overall season, Coach Gabrielson said, "Thank God for the nice weather, I only had to sqeegee the courts once."

Mathews leads

After a long and tiring day at school, the Girls' Golf team was ready for an evening of practice.

Led by the overwhelming power of Lynn Mathews, the team consistently handled the competitors.

South hit the links with a very impressive show of teamwork. This became their winning formula as the girls made a habit of finishing tournament play in the top three.

With the helpful command of Coach Paul Sexton, the girls performed their skills well by capturing second at league, third at regionals and a record breaking third place finish at state.

The future looks bright for the Girls Golf team. Returning, top player, Lynn Mathews, will have help from promising sophomores. The year's performance should mark a winning tradition for girls golf.

Hard work yields valuable skills

Everyday after school, from 3:20 to 6 pm, the girls' volleyball team under the scrutiny of Coach Sherri Brosseau, became familiar with digging, spiking, bumping, setting and working out. Seniors, Captain Jane Cowee, Mary Eakes, Cindy Jurzack and Paige Mongoven, formed a solid base for the squad, with Paige receiving a spot on the all-tournament team. Junior Lynette Darling contributed her height and skill to the season as an excellent spiker. After being named the JCCC tournament champs, the squad finished fifth in the League with a 15-16 record.

The Junior Varsity team proved to be a well-rounded, evenly skilled squad. Coach Brosseau felt the girls "played well as a team, with each girl doing her part." JV ended their season with a 6-8 record.

The Sophomore A and B squads, headed by Coach Karen Hadel, suffered losses, but gained valuable experience. Coach Hadel, a rookie herself, found the girls eager to work hard to develop their skills for next year.

Injuries hamper Sophomore task

With early season injuries to key players, the Sophomore boys' basketball team struggled through a difficult season. Brad Keeler and Ken Heinz were sidelined for the entire season, while John Martin sat out three weeks. All suffered leg injuries.

First year Coach Greg Wilson found the team difficult to evaluate because he lacked teams to compare them with. However, he did feel the boys gave one hundred percent, and was "very pleased with their efforts."

The strength of the squad proved to be their excellent outside shooting and ball handling abilities. Coach Wilson felt their weak spots were in shot selection and the mental aspects of the game. Yet, the season was sure to strengthen the rookies playing abilities, providing them with valuable experience for a strong Junior Varsity squad next year.

Unity apparent as season wears on Taking to the floor with new players, the Junior Varsity Boy's Basketball Team went through a season of ups and downs.

In the shadow of Varsity, the JV team practiced together, traveled together and even played the same days for games.

Coach David Oliver believed that the backbone of a successful basketball team is skill: shooting, dribbling, passing and rebounding. After a few problems were resolved, the JV team adapted and executed these skills well.

Individual effort on the part of every player led to the outstanding finish. Paul Giordano consistently averaged 12 to 14 points a game. John Crowl and sophomore Keith Ryan showed good potential. The JV team should prove to be a fine Varsity squad next year.

Raiders struggle for few victories

Losing four starters from last year's squad which won the Sunflower League title and went to the state tourney, proved too much to overcome as the Raider Basketball team struggled most of the season. South lost three heartbreaking games at the opening of the year, which seemed to be an indicator of things to come. The team stayed around the .500 mark the entire season and split with most of their Sunflower League foes.

Inconsistency was the major problem that plagued the team. At times South flashed the form that carried them to league titles the previous two years but were unable to keep it up for any length of time. Coach Paul Sexton, in his third year at South, spent the season looking for the right combinations to bring out the full potential in his team.

The Raiders did have their bright spots though, as they posted big victories at home over Washington, SM West and SM East. Opposing teams found it hard to win on our home court.

The team was led for the most part by center Clint Johnson and guards Kevin Ludwig and Chris Laddish. Seniors Scott Groninger, Scott Affelt, John Sturgeon, and Denney Disch, as well as junior Brad Palmer, also contributed to the team effort.

Sophomore girls debut on court

As coach of the Sophomore Basketball Team, Mr. Dick Kramer spent most of his time talking up to the girls, keeping their spirits high.

As a new team, the girls needed much practice with their shooting, although they were an excellent defensive team. Headed by leading scorers, Rochelle Bartel, Susan Covington, Sue Hanrahan, and Chris O'Connor, the squad was constantly on the move. Their over-all season record of five wins and fourteen losses didn't reflect their enthusiasm. The girls plan to be winners next year on the Junior Varsity and Varsity squads.

JV girls display all-around effort

Sometimes Junior Varsity teams are looked upon as second rate to the Varsity squads. However, the girls JV basketball team consistantly held its own with outstanding talent.

Coached by Randy Gray, new to the coaching staff, the girls worked on their individual and team skills everyday after school with the Varsity squad.

The backbone of the team's strength was seen in the talented starting line-up. Cari Creason and Kathy Scott demonstrated skilled ball handling, while Allison Malm, Kelly Glazier and Martha Cronan excelled in their shooting abilities. Also adding to the game were Robin Kamen and Mary Lyons showing outstanding hustle abilities, both defensively and offensively. The entire team worked together for a successful all-around effort, with an important victory over the tough Sumner squad. Next year, the girls will be ready for a strong Varsity squad.

Birthday Tradition Strengthens Team

Comprised of seven juniors and only two seniors, the Girls' Varsity Basketball team overcame the difficulty through the season.

With only one year of experience, the juniors sought to strengthen their team power by working out everyday after school from 2:30 to 4:30. The stiffest district competition ever forced the girls to excell beyond the basics.

The girls carried on a long established birthday tradition, by either throwing a banana cream pie in each other's face or throwing people in the swimming pool.

All-around player, Paige Mongoven, senior, saw limited playing time because of a finger injury, while Patti Hoover and Carolyn Wagner demonstrated a high skill level. Lynette Darling and Nancy McDonald sparked the team with their shooting ability and exchange student, Ylva Frithiofson exhibited her considerable talent. Coach Ron Millard provided a stable balance for the team's playing and looks yet for another winning season next year, as the Raiders return five juniors in Martha Cronan, Therese Mullin and Cari Creason.

Optimism governs team spirit

With six returning lettermen, Head Coach Guy Malone's wrestling squad entered the 1979-80 season. With new found optimism Drew Hinton, Steve Mackley, Mike Osbourn, Mark Rainey, Ken Hassig, and Korey York all returned with a year of varsity experience under their belts. These individuals along with Troy Malone, various members of a strong Junior Varsity squad from the year before, and handful of skilled sophomores gave the team a variety of talent and experience, a far cry from the two returning lettermen and relative inexperience that clouded the Raider Wrestling Team the year before.

The team raced to a 4-1 record, defeating Wyandotte, Blue Valley, Raytown, and Rockhurst in duel meets, before the Christmas break. After the break, South hosted an all-day tournament, which featured eight teams. Hassig finished second in the heavyweight division, losing to Miege's Mike Reuther, in the finals. York and Rainey both registered third, while Mackley and Sophomore, Joe Currier both took fourth in their respective weight classes.

Malone, along with Assistant Coach, Bill King, have skillfully built up their program, and success is to be expected in future years.

Coens sets mark in state meet

The Raider swim team, apparently among the best in the area, again asserted themselves in the league in the 1979-1980 season.

Nine returning lettermen dotted head Coach Bruce Bove's roster when practice began. Junior Brad Coens set school and state marks in the 50 freestyle, 100 freestyle, 200 freestyle and the 100 butterfly. He qualified for the state meet in every event he swam in, though under state rules he could only enter in two, plus a relay. Brad placed first in his two state events.

The loss of several swimmers was compensated with strong performances by seniors Tom Biggins, Clark Howes, Brett Spencer, transfer student Eric Peters, Dave Wannamaker and juniors Paul Boppart, Bob Kaak, Kevin Kelly and Scott Smalley.

Also a talented group of sophomores headed by Joe and Bill McGowan, showed Coach Bruce Bove much promise.

The diving team was headed by senior letterman Jeff Dyer. Other members included Senior Steve Shortland and Greg Kudrna.

The highlight of the season was beating top-notched S. M. East.

Gymnasts compete in unique style

In a sport as individualistic as gymnastics, competition within team members becomes as crucial as the teamwork. For the boys' gymnastic team, this meant meeting every day after school from 4:00 to 7:30 p.m. With assistance from Coach Steve Nelson, who doubled as a gym teacher at Nallwood Junior High, the members were able to improve their own form and critique their fellow member's. With Coach Nelson also instructing teams from North and Northwest, the boys were able to view a wider scope of talent and become good friends with other squads.

Alan Hill completed the season as the only senior team member, compiling much of the squad's scoring. While Paul Hamann sat out with an injury, Kevin Knaus, Matt Johnson and Van Crosby contributed their developing skills. The team finished the year fifth in the Sunflower League. Next year, Coach Nelson will be looking to his four juniors for a strong senior foundation and solid scoring.

Girls undefeated through season

Team unity is as nearly important to an athletic team as natural ability. Ms. Billie Rices' Girl's Gymnastics team was fortunate enough to have both on this year's squad. The team finished second at the state meet, with the score of 98.5, to Kapawn Mt. Carmel's 100. They also recorded a second place finish at the league meet. Preceding those meets was an undefeated regular season. Senior, Liz Landshof, was a driving force in that undefeated season. She broke every individual school record.

Seniors, Nan Newkirk and Jenny Randall were the teams' captain and co-captain. Newkirk was a two-year letter-winner, while Randall lettered in each of her three years. Nancy Needham, also a senior, received her first year letter.

The squad will return five letter-winners, all sophomores. This means a bright future, not to mention the possibility of the state championship that narrowly eluded them this year.

Intramural teams involve many

The intramural competition was tough this year, with thirty-six basketball teams competing. These thirty-six teams included two girls' squads, and one faculty squad. Tim Burkendine, the intramural coordinator, commented on the skill the faculty developed, since they were the only team returning year after year. "We enjoy getting together on an unacademic level," stated Burkendine.

The intramural season lasts two months, with each team playing an average of fifteen games. At the end of the regular competition, a sixteen team tournament began. After the first round eight teams were eliminated. The remaining eight teams went into a round robin competition. The team who won the most games was the intramural champs.

Soccer kicks off winning season

Bounding into its first season with a talented squad, the Varsity soccer team strived to be the strongest team in the area.

Starting the season with an impressive showing against Blue Valley, Raiders finished the game by the score of 11-1.

Under the direction of Coach Kelvin Reese, the Varsity squad came out of the season with a 15-3-1 record. Captains Dan Harrison and Mark Hansen proved to be true leaders, providing strong spirit to the team. Goalie Dan Atkins had a tremendous season with two shutouts. John Copeland and Scott Ballard contributed to the team's successful season.

The Junior Varsity squad finished the season with a strong record. Captain Dave Connor and Jay Stobaugh led the team to many victories. The team gained much experience and should prove to be a fine Varsity team next year.

'82 plunges into future

As another year clicks by on the time clock, another class of students arrives. Thus, may we introduce the class of '82. This class will, like any other that has preceded them, have a definite reputation to live up to and work to uphold. The leaders of the class of '82 for their kickoff year are President, Janet Mahoney; Vice-President, Carol Masterson; Secretary, Susie O'Brien; and Treasurer, Debbie Shore. These four girls had the responsibility of creating a class treasury, and beginning the funds for the prom that their class will sponser for the Class of '81 for their senior year. Thus, the year of 1979-80 was in essence, a planning year for the year to come. In becoming acquainted with this school, the sophomore class has also had to become familiar with the processes of fundraising and preparing for their two years ahead.

KSMS, "On the air"

KSMS, South's own radio station, had its premiere on November 30, while playing over the lunchroom rumble on the PA system. The variety of music varied from rock and roll to the Beatles' mellow love songs. There was a brief suspension of broadcasting due to an outbreak in the lunchroom, (better known as a food fight) on the debut day, but KSMS was back on the air a few days later. The reception given to the D.J.'s emceeing and to the overall product was an exciting one, as the atmosphere of the cafeteria changed from a humdrum murmur to a mixture of humming and low talking. So, what "was coming" on November 30 as an undeterminable success, turned out to be an accepted ritual-KSMS was "on the air," hopefully for good.

Pranks prevail

Every year, it seems as though students come up with stranger and crazier acts to both surprise people and to add laughter to everyone's day. The stunts are not only on the seniors' part, even though they do provide many of the more elaborate ones. The juniors and sophomores are also starting in early on crazy ways to surprise their friends. The stunts range from toilet papering trees and putting tires on the flag pole, to dressing up in whacky outfits on Halloween. No doubt, our student body provides new and different ideas to spice up everybody's lives, and the stunts are getting funnier every year.

Spare seconds spent studiously

Did you ever ask yourself while sitting in study hall, "What am I doing here?" Well, there are those who found ways out of the tedious, sometimes boring monotony of the silent rooms, by either self-entertainment or by transferring out into another class or by becoming a lab assistant. For those destined to remain, the resorts pointed to playing cards, reading magazines, or on occasion, studying. Other students found their free hours whiled away performing duties as lab assistants. These students found themselves making coffee, delivering messages or grading papers. For future reference, if you ever want something different to do in your off hours at school, consider the alternatives, though few, and choose the most desirable to you. Choose wisely!

Students seek their futures

Have you ever wondered what your future would hold? Have you ever taken time out to plan for your days ahead? There are probably various answers to these questions. However, on October 23, many seniors had to consider the answers to these questions for themselves. The District College Fair was held on this date, and was responsible for the sudden consideration of many students' futures. The fair was held at East, and consisted of various college representatives from across the country who came to answer questions, hand out information and overall, try to persuade students to attend their college. For many, the decision was an easy one to make. However, there were many who were only beginning to make their choice. The evening did jolt many students into thinking about their upcoming plans, whether they were ready or not.

1. The college representative from Rice University talks with a couple of students about several opportunities at Rice. The talks get into both propaganda and influencing statements, but the process of enrolling in a university entails both entrance exams and pre-enrollment, plus sending transcripts, references and other formalities. 2. Stanford University was represented by this lady, who as other representatives, was present to provide information and answer any questions from unsure applicants. The ice is hot

Ice hockey has become a very popular sport to numerous people recently. Many students have been playing on teams for several years, however only recently has hockey been recognized by various other people. Hockey is an exciting, fast-moving sport to both play and watch. It takes extremely accurate speed and timing on the players' parts. The style of hockey resembles that of soccer; the spectators have to be alert at all times, or they are apt to miss a crucial move or play. This alertness is required on the part of the players, also. When watching a talented team play, there is a distinct grace and smoothness to the game. The combination of the players' style on the ice, and the efficiency of the game make for an exciting and pleasant sport for the players and spectators. Even though hockey has been a long time in coming, the wait for its popular debut was worth the time.

Animals add variety to life

Throughout the expanse of the first floor, strange sounds and occasional yelps can be heard emerging from the depths of the biology rooms. Various types of animals inhabit these rooms throughout the year, the types ranging from mice to a six foot boa constrictor. There are also lizard-like creatures along with furry brown animals with eight rather long legs that disappear before anyone realizes they were there. These creatures contribute to the intensity of studies conducted by the biology department, and they also add an air of nature to the habitat of the rooms. However, when a snake disappears or when a student finds a tarantula crawling in an unusual place, there are sudden surges of screams which become familiar after a few weeks into a new year. People begin to take these occasional outbursts in stride when they pass the science rooms, because they have become used to unusual events, and treat them as everyday occurances.

Get acquainted

Anytime someone begins at a new school, the tensions, frustrations and homework seem to pile up all at once, no matter how hard one tries to avoid it. However, there are new innovations thought up to make the transition easier on a person. One, is to become acquainted with the school beforehand, so when it actually starts, people will seek you out because you know where everything is. Another is to become involved with an activity group and meet new people and potential friends. However, there are always the extravagant people who seek unusual ways of becoming familiar with school. For instance, in order to view people better, one can climb in the trophy case and get a birdseye view. Or, to find the gym distance between floor and ceiling, why not hang from a beam and drop to the floor, while holding a tape measure and count the inches. No matter the strangeness of ideas, the intent behind them is reasonable. Who wants to make a fool of themselves their first year of high school?

Sports explored

"One, two, three, four; — come on, get those legs moving.

Sound familiar? To many of us, gym class seems a long time ago, however, for the sophomores, and those juniors and seniors who left the credit for last, a year of hard work for graduation credit was, sometimes, a gruelling process. Football and basketball players make the game look easily dealt with, however, when a newcomer is thrown into the game, the results can be somewhat distressing. Instant failure seems to strike the moment the football sails overhead, just out of reach of one's hands; or when the basketball, seemingly under control, is taken by an opponent, unaware by the original player as he runs down the court empty handed. For the most part, though, a lot is learned of the various sports, and the sports are enjoyed.

Middle ages rise again

How does the setting of a damp, dark dungeon, concealed in a large stone castle, surrounded by a moat with a heavy fog appeal to most of you? If you were a member of Dungeons and Dragons this year, the appeal was tremendous. This group is not like many "special interest" groups; their interest is one in the fantasy game, Dungeons and Dragons. The game is a complex re-enactment of medieval days where dungeons, dragons, monsters, elves and impossible quests were the style. The Dungeon Master sets a quest for the remaining players, by drawing a design of a castle, including a dungeon. He then places varied objects throughout the castle, while the other players act out the quest set for them. The time put in by this group in learning the rules alone, was several hours, but where else can a person revert back to the middle ages for a couple of hours and then pick up and go home?

Bands beat on

Two performing groups that are heard but seldom recognized, are the bearers of music at games, pep assemblies and rallies, the Green and Gold Pep Bands. Led by their directors, Dave Strong and Anne Prinz, respectively, these bands have led the student body through Drill Team and Flag Team routines; the opening to basketball games; the national anthem and, of course, our school and fight songs. These special band members spent many hard hours before and after school, perfecting their repertoire. Having to share the bus with the Drill Team members to away games was one of the tedious duties enjoyed by the male members of the band. Really, the end result provided our school with added spirit, which was greatly needed.

Time runs out

When the school year begins, the end of the year seems to be the farthest time in anyone's mind. It seems to creep slowly and never seems to arrive. However, for four members of the junior class, its officers, the time seemed to keep clicking at a steady pace. May seemed to arrive sooner than expected. Kelly McNerney, Damien Schroeder, Janet Trentman, and Alice Cheng, along with the help of Mrs. Lois Supple, their advisor, had worked almost an entire year towards this date, which was the day of the prom for the class of 1980. The excitement, confusion, last minute details, etc. all came together as the couples danced across the floor of the Ramada Inn Central's main ballroom, to the music of Power Glide. As tradition accounts, prom is the event of the year and appeals to most upperclassmen. This year was no exception. With the efforts of officers of the class of 1981, the Seniors were presented with an elegant evening with which to conclude their memories of South.

Dr. Welch finds new home

A new face tends to be lost in the crowd, but some people just have that quality that shines through a dense fog of people. Though many students had not noticed the change of administrators, our administration has lost one of its members and has gained a new member. Dr. Welch replaced Mrs. Carroll as assistant principal this year, and has been very well received. Dr. Welch's style is a very friendly, casual one, which is a nice addition to one's day. He is an extremely funny man, and he always has a word for everyone. Students find him easy to relate to, and he will do anything for a laugh. His popularity over this year has grown rapidly as he has come into contact with more of the students and it will continue to grow in coming years. Overall, Dr. Welch is a witty, fun-loving, respectable man, who is a welcome member of our administration. To him, "Good luck, and welcome."

Funds raised

From the very beginning of the school year, the sound of clanging money and the exchange of various types of candy is heard in every classroom and hallway in the school. Yes, the candy sales business has really boomed and is the number one fundraiser for most school groups. However, this year there were some different ideas which added a change of pace to the humdrum sale of candy. The Marx Brothers festival was the A Cappella choir's idea to raise money. A Cappella also started a new tradition, that of delivering "Singing Pellagrams" during the Thanksgiving season. Also around Thanksgiving, the junior class held its annual "Teacher Turkey contest" which aided their funds for prom. There were Raider mugs, carnations, trash cans, candles and magazine subscriptions. So, next time you hear the exchange of money in the hall, think of all the time and effort that went into raising money, before asking, "Are they plain or peanut M&M's?"

Auto Tech informs student and driver

If mechanics is your game, then auto technology is the place to be. If the difference between the power behind a four cylinder and a six cylinder engine never meant anything before, maybe it would if you were an auto tech student. Auto Tech is designed to inform students everything there is to know about cars, their composition and how to repair them. The students repair cars, perform body work, repaint cars that have rusted, and really do anything down to changing a flat tire. In essence, auto tech is an all-around course on how to rebuild a car, from top to bottom. Even though the job of repairing a car is not always simple, the time spent by the people in the course is not wasted. The information taught, and more importantly the application of this information in real situations, shows the effectiveness of this course for anyone who drives.

Office upheld

The backbone of our school is sometimes felt to be our administration, secretaries, aides and attendance ladies. However, who is behind some of the tedious, menial labor jobs such as delivering messages, and collecting the attendance sheets? That's right, the office assistants. The openings range from secretaries' assistant to being a counselors' aide. An office assistant comes in contact with many teachers and students of varied areas, which is a definite benefit for students with little exposure, new students or sophomores. Thus, even though the position of being a lab assistant in the office may not appeal to some, and may sound boring or uninteresting, our school would never keep rolling if it weren't for their help. They keep the system going.

Career center targets on jobs

What am I going to be doing ten years from now? Where is my life going after high school? If you ask yourself these questions often, then the career center could be the place for you. The career center teaches a mini-course which informs students about the job market, ways in which to acquire a job and many different aspects of various careers. After concluding this course, students are able to join the consortium program, which allows them to work for specified hours during the day, in which they receive credit, while learning career management. For many students, even those who only take the course for the experience, the career program is beneficial in searching for jobs and in getting those jobs. No matter what the reason for taking the course, the benefits are great, for both the present and in planning the future.

Skippers beware

"I don't feel like going to Government today."

"Everyone says we aren't doing much, so let's skip."

Sound familiar? Usually the skipping syndrome does not hit until the end of the junior year or the beginning of one's senior year. However, by the middle of the senior year, the urge to cut class becomes so dominant, that it takes an extremely large will power to resist the temptation. Feelings to watch for and to avoid: extreme boredom; unfinished homework; urges for a doughnut or an order of french fries; sleeping later than usual. These are only a few of the symptoms that can lead to habitual skipping, so, a word to the wise: If the urge overtakes you, and the habit becomes severe, at least try to hold off until you have all of your graduation credits. Otherwise you may be trying to resist the urge for another year.

Foods for thought

"What's for lunch today?"

"I dont know, but whatever it is, I dont think I'm going to like it!"

"O.k., let's go out."

"Where to? Mac's, Hardees, Winchells?"

"Well, let's cruise by McDonalds and you can run in and grab some food and we'll eat on the way back." "It's jammed in there. Better keep the car running and be ready to take off as soon as possible when I come out."

"What took so long? We only have five minutes before the bell rings."

"I think the whole school was in there, all trying to be waited on first. I was almost wiped out by a clump of paranoids who were worried about being late!"

"Well, you should have been worrying, too, because now we're late!"

"Oh well, it's better to be late once in a while and eat a decent lunch than to be on time and eat at school!"

"I hear ya!!"

Parking poses problem

The job of walking the parking lot, checking for illegal parkers, is an unrecognized, unglamorous and in essence, an unpleasant one. As the year passes on, so does the interest of the job, so the officer responsible for the parking lot patrol changed. Officer Steve Martin, no known relation to the comic, had the privilege of checking for double-parked cars, cars without permits, and for those obvious latecomers, who hastily pulled into faculty parking places. Although the tickets were necessary and justified, the complaints by the students arose just the same. However, the lot would lose its prestige and aloofness if just anyone was allowed to park there.

Hall sets pace

Stop and think about the places where people meet in the mornings. There are several distinct areas of school that dominate over the rest. Those being hallways, the park, the choir room and the gym. However, the main thoroughfare for people to group in, is the front hall. The location is good, being the central point from one end of the school to the other, and the atmosphere is great for large groups of people. So, in essence, the front hall is the meeting place for most students, or at the very least, a place to pass familiar people and just say "Hi!". Also, on Friday mornings, the front hall can be observed full of streamers, cheerleaders, band members and team players, not to mention the bystanders in front of the office and intertwined within the excitement. The front hall receives its share of talkers, walkers and galkers every day of the week.

The front hall is an ideal place to meet and talk to friends. Kelly McNerney takes advantage of this meeting place to discuss something with her friend.

Escape provided

There are some people who like to talk during passing time between classes and others who go to their lockers or get a drink in the hall, and then there are those who would rather meet their friends behind the school for a cigarette before trudging to another class. The "park," located in back of school off of school property, is a popular place for people to go in between classes to talk to friends and to relax. There is usually a large crowd of people on the small amount of land available for accomodations, and these people are having fun doing what calms them down the most. As the day wears on, the crowd gradually decreases, but the lot is never empty. The park is a place where people can escape and talk in their own world, outside.

Seniors
'80 exits with a touch of class

As the final stretch of their high school days passed by, the senior class officers prepared the school for life without the class of '80. As senior class officers, Eddie Speer, President; Sarah Beeks, Vice-President; Julie Cornelison, Treasurer; and Allyson Beardsley, Secretary spent long hard hours planning events. Some of their work was directed towards Senior Talent Show, After-prom Party, calendaring a ten-year reunion, and more. The job involved some creativity, also as they were faced with the task of senior pranks. There were the annuals, such as senior skip day, plus new and original ideas. All in all, it was a good year, a good three years in fact. Next year it's off to college, and another sophomore class moves in, and the beat goes on . . . .

GEORGE M. ABRAMS
Honor Roll 2,3,4; Intramurals 2,3,4; Cross Country 2; Track 2; Foreign Language Fair 2; Consortium 4.
Some memories will fade away but good ones never will. Glad you got it Dave. They made it so hard to forget. Have fun in the mines, Aff. The Morgue, keep on ballclubin', swoopin', chucknick syndrome.

CHRIS P. ACKLEY
Honor Roll 2,3,4; Scholarship Pin 2,3,4; National Honor Society 3, 4; Baseball 2,3,4; Intramurals 2,3,4.
Friends—without them life is worthless. Don, thanks for listening. Ernie, anytime you need help—call! Thanks Mac and Stiggy. MacDonald's, thanks for all the great times. Deb, there's only one thing that matters—Love—and that's you and me. To give of yourself to people is to have friends; to have friends is the meaning of Life. Good Luck is when hard work meets opportunity.

SCOTT E. AFFELT
Honor Roll 2,3,4; Scholarship Pin 2,3,4; National Honor Society 3, 4; Chrmn Service Comm 4; Cross Country 2; Basketball 2,3,4; Numeral 3; Letter 4; Foreign Language Fair 3.
"I'm the kind of man who likes to get away, start thinking about tomorrow today." Spot, "Z", Hansen —Remember the Ides of March. Ack & Rex—Raytown and camping. Rass & Rex, KU stinks. Ack, horse & I say "Calm down." No burping, Sturg. Good luck Abe. Dog—Ya, Varsity finally. Dick—see ya in the snow. Thanx Coor, Cya soon.

ALISON AKIN
Pep Club 2,3.
Thanks mom and dad for your support this year; I couldn't have made it without you. Blache, you've been a terrific friend this year, I'm glad you moved next door. Kathy, the wild times in government were great, not to mention all the intimate talks we've had. Good luck in years to come.

Kmart

The K mart Story . . .

It started back in 1899 with Sebastian Kresge and a nickel-and-dime store that never sacrificed quality for price, but always came through with a bargain. Kresge's policy of "Satisfaction Always" became the foundation of a business that grew, and grew, and grew! In 1962, from those hundreds of Kresge's stores, a new concept evolved . . . and the first K mart discount store was opened. With the same high quality—plus lower-than-ever, discount prices—and savings in dollars, not dimes! There were other discount stores, but none quite like K mart . . . and the public soon caught on to the BIG K mart DIFFERENCE — Satisfaction Always! Today, more than 1,400 K mart stores in America pay tribute to Sebastian Kresge and his integrity to bring our customers savings, quality, and that original promise of satisfaction always, backed by sincerity and a tradition of 80 years of promises kept!

We, the Goldette Executives, would like to thank all of the Goldettes for their participation this year. You have proven to us and to everyone that our hunch about the success of this group was right. You're all great! We've been through a lot of work but also a lot of fun. To the Seniors in the group: Good luck in all you do. Wherever you go, remember the times spent at South. To the Sophomores and Juniors: You will have to carry on the new-found traditions! Good Luck! To Mrs. Trupp and Mr. Millard: We would never have made it without you. Thanks, again. To everyone: Never forget the things we've accomplished this year; the most important being; meeting new people, making new friends and becoming closer to old ones. You're all special to us. All we can say is "Thanks!"

Friends...

The beginning of a true and lasting friendship is one of the most important times of life. A time that we'll remember, maybe not minute by minute, but by the feelings that have slowly come out of it. I'm glad that we met and found many reasons to get to know each other better and slowly become friends.

Friendship requires choice, risk, honesty, patience, time, and ultimate concern.

When we look back on our friendship, there are so many memories of times we've spent together. I'm grateful for every one of them, but my favorite memories are of the times when we've simply laughed, had fun, and enjoyed ourselves. The times when you've listened so carefully when I've really needed to talk and sort out my thoughts.

I could never tell you what a difference you have made in my life.

I want you to know that you're a very special person in my eyes and that when I think of you it will always be "with love" . . . because you're my friend.

Good friends must not always be together. It is the feeling of oneness, when distant, that proves a lasting friendship.

My friends,
I wish for you to know you can be anything you want hard enough to work for,
but to remember there's a price
we pay for everything.

To make some real commitments in life,
to work hard to reach your goals,
but not feel compelled to apologize to others for goofing off.
Anything worth doing is worth getting done . . .
how well you do it is your free choice.

As you grow older to stay friends with the child inside . . .
play, dance, be silly, take chances.
Empathize with those who worry about you, listen to the advice of experience but know you are ultimately responsible for your decisions, not they.

To love books for the chance to learn others' ideas, but to love real people more.
To be open and honest with friends,
but to let them and you have secrets, too.

Above all, to maintain faith in your innate goodness and personhood, your ability to make this world a more beautiful place.

I'm happy to be sharing with you a part of these years of growth, disappointment, discovery, hurt feelings and joy.

I love you.

—Richard Dawson

Love, Mart ;)

To those who mean the most to me . . . words would be an injustice. Constant love, understanding, support and laughter found under one roof. Thanks for the rainbow. Mom and Dad: Don't go changing to try and please me, you never let me down before. I love you just the way you are. Booley: Thanks for your wisdom, humor and especially for leading the way. You will never know how much you were missed. Pi-shi: You've kept me company and shared with me . . . love you. Someday our princes will come but hold on, a special one is planned for you. Sorry, I wouldn't let you drive. Za: I'll never outdo "as the muchas turns." Sorry, for the neglected time. Don't give up on the world, you have to look beyond. You are loved and held in my heart. Thanks to those who have walked beside me . . . Susan: A mouse yet a mighty one. Forever my love. Thanks for always being there. You have helped me get through. Dee: Thanks for your friendship. Both too busy to go out and have fun? Marty: No matter what the distance, you are always close in my heart. I will remember the memories. Tina: An old raider; always in spirit, if not long distance. Thanks for everything. Mary Anne: Keep your face to the sunshine and you won't see the shadow. Teachers: Do a little more than everyone expects of you and soon they'll expect a little more. We made the grades but still we wonder who we really are. South: To those who made me love-it, to those who made me hate it, I have learned from all of you. I'll miss not those I never met but those I met and never knew. I did what I felt was right. I showed love to those who needed it most. I cared and I tried. I laughed. I was myself. But no one will quite understand . . . for I can hear the silence and I can see the darkness and I got to find my corner of the sky ....Diana Frenzel.

The old yearbook sits on the shelf.
Waiting, just waiting to be remembered.
Reminiscing through high school times,
the traditions still remain.
But now they are mere photos,
Who would dream that one book could hold so many precious memories.
— Karen

Love, Mom and Dad.

---

there were times when i wondered how i'd survived this long.
and if i'd ever have the chance to do more than just live.
i wanted to live and be free, not be alone.
i wondered if i'd ever have the chance to really make it.
then i found someone who could show me how to truly live, how to do more than just exist.
he said he could show me how to be free and that he'd always be with me, he'd always love me.
and i've discovered i owe him my life. and i know that i love him.

1980

A Cappella — it was a good year! — each one of you should feel proud of the things we did and the good times we had. It was great while it lasted (wanna buy a tootsies roll?) Hermitage Swingers (juniors) — SA, DB, CB, RE, SH, DG, FM, AM, BR, PS, JW — "What words of wisdom can I tell them, How can I help to ease their way?" Always remember to smile. (Larry's not that bad) Hermitage Seniors — SB, CC, KE, LF, RF, LH, KL, CM, SP, DS, DS, ES, LS, MS, SS, JT, TT, KW — (anyone missing?) — it WAS a blast (skip day —everyday!) Dave — looks like macho will always be "in" — Success to you always. Raphaels — CC, LH, ES, DS, LG — Let's go get some juniors! Pie Time! To my band "friends" — Shaquamawodi (the camp, that is) — Kegs, Kerm, Krittender — it was better than I thought it would be — Such leadership! WWS — JB, KH, GD, CM — but I like the Nellybell! TG — keep practicing. Now for the Theatre Flags JB — think of it and I'll be there. RH — thanks for listening, sorry about mouse. To the rest RM, LG, AR-P, SR, CS, RR, TM, MM, JB, TT, EF (where's my blintz?) DC, LM, DB, BM, AT, JC, MP, BC, JA, MR, TR, LD, SD, RS, KC — (how did we all fit into the Little Theater?) may you all meet with success, fame and happiness. HM — thanks for the ear and the album. Got any rice? To all my good friends; CC — thanks for all your love and support. I'd sacrifice my kitchen anytime for you, sucker! Sing A Happy Song (in Swahili) LH — (alias as "pepsi lips") — you made me laugh when I thought I'd never laugh again. The fun times are my most cherished memories. SO — thanks for being my "pillar of strength" when I needed it. "juxtaposition" CT — you've always been there — there are no words to express what our friendship has meant to me. BL — beep, beep — best of luck to you too. SS — why or how I was blessed with you I'll never know. Maybe there is a God after all. SueBee — I'm gonna make you drink Castor Oil! Stop Sign! you are wonderful and I love you. TS — "BREAD" — you fox — I'm gonna molest you — swish, swish, BBRRRR — I love you. (actually, just the tan) (speaking of which) Steph. — I love you too — you perfect "10". Lastly — Allyson — I love and admire you as I have no other. You touched my heart when you showed that you cared for me. I will never, ever forget you. To my teachers — ML, JC, LS, JUDD — you helped me express myself through music. DH — thanks for the voice. Gerry — you were at one time a person I respected and loved. But I suppose I had to grow up sometime. I'm sorry it ended. My fault. Give my love to the kids. I want to add a warning to all you people with good intentions Watch Out! The people with good intentions are the most vulnerable people in the world. When you go out on a limb to be generous, thoughtful, or kind, be prepared to fall. To One and All — Never be afraid to dream, although there be dangers in it For nothing comes of nothing. When you least expect, your dreams will become realities. And if they do not, they gain more significance, so that when they do finally come true, much greater is the reward. And remember, God is always with you, waiting for you to ask him in. I hope I haven't offended anyone. Doug Jones

We would like to give special thanks to all who contributed to the 1979-1980 Heritage:

Opening and Closing Sections — John Steinberg and Scott Lawder for the super jobs they did photographing their respective sections. Karen Samuels for the copy.

People of Inter-Collegiate Press—Especially Mr. Bob Gadd for all of his time and talent to help us through this year.

DeCloud Studios—Who provided all individual pictures plus many, many more candid and group shots. Especially Mr. John DeCloud and Mr. Keith Timberlake.

The people of Shawnee Mission South who made 1979-1980 a year to remember.

Special thanks goes to Ms. Linda Barber who took on a difficult job and made it seem easy.

Time passes quickly as we move through new phases of time, but our spot never changes. Our lives merely adapt to a new environment. This yearbook represents a single point in time. One to be remembered with the aid of pictures and commentary that capture our lives in a moment. The instant the shutter opens and closes life is brought to a standstill. If a picture paints a thousand words then this one book is a library. Perhaps a slight bit heavy, it represents evenings at school, early morning pictures and hundreds of hours spent reading, writing, editing and then proofreading again.

I would never have made it through this year without the faithful assistance of each editor: Sharon, Marty, Lori, Susan, John and Allyson. Linda Barber—Well we made it. Maybe not all in one piece, but we made it. I'll never forget our year together—beginning in Glenwood Springs. It seems like only yesterday when we were staying up all night to meet our deadline at ICP camp. "Memories . . ." I think that song is inbedded in my mind forever. Both of us would not have made it without each individual staff member. A group is only as strong as its weakest member but our group has no weak point. Each member put forth his or her utmost. Leigh, Jann, Ann, Michele, Joan, Mary, Joyce, Barb, Brad, Susie, Ken, Scott, Pam, Andy, and Sheldon: you are what made this book what it is. For the juniors, I hope your spot next year will be in yearbook because the experience I received this year is incomparable to any other. Remember that you only get out of a group what you yourself put into it. For now my spot is here but I will soon be moving on. Please never let traditions fade but merely begin new ones and improve upon those already established.

Academics Editors

To come back for a second year at anything requires a little extra energy to muster the same fresh enthusiasm felt the first time around. Sometimes it is easier to go along blindly not knowing what problems will confront you than it is to fully realize the trials, tears and time that are going to be required of you and still have the courage to do it again. So it is for yearbook — I came back with a little less enthusiasm and forseeing problems which became realities, but the more I gave the more I received and this second year became all the more special for the extra effort it required. I know in time the hassles will fade and all I'll remember is the laughter. Thoreau writes, "Advance confidently in the direction of your dreams an you will meet with success in une

By the time senior year rol around, I think anyone finds it ha to put a true-blue effort into an project. What makes the time spe on the yearbook so special is w will see our work in print; and we gaze at a spread or read over copy, we will be rewarded for o efforts. With this motivation, we' coped with screaming deadlines, frustrating layouts and unbending photographers, not to mention clumpy white-out. Some students will not like what we've have done, others will love it. I just hope everyone can find a little bit of themselves and their year at South brought back to life by the flip of a page. Thanks must go to my loyal team, Jann and Leigh, for having the patience with me and all the little problems which often seemed like mountains. I must say the calm and cool manner of Mrs. Barber and Karen never failed to amaze me, even in the tense situations. Enough thanks can't be said to Marty and Mary for their understanding and laughter which made the moments so special. I'll never forget the wild lunches and the craziness that kept us sane. I hope the entire staff feels they have accomplished a great feat, for indeed they have. It's comforting to know that we will be constantly rewarded anytime we pick up a Heritage, not only for the moments captured in the book, but also for the moments spent putting them there.

Sharon Brussell

Organizations Editor

In yearbook, opportunities for advancement are great. I am a living example, I rose from a lowly photographer to an editor in one short year. It was a rather unique experience to teach while I was still learning myself.

I loved it when the rest of the staff begged me to take pictures, but really, the groveling on the floor and the kisses on the feet weren't necessary. However, since there are no credits in opening section, I'm taking this opportunity to say, "Yes I took them all."

I discovered I could finish a spread in one night so I came to the conclusion I could do a yearbook in a week.

Obviously on a page where everyone else is serious, I enjoy looking at the lighter side. It's funny but the mystique of a camera seems to bring people running. I met those who would fall into pyramid formation or slip into a comfortable bathing suit. Putting my camera aside for a minute is hard; putting it aside forever is impossible. It is the same with the pictures in the yearbook. The memories can be put aside for awhile, but not forever. Each time someone picks up the book, the memories live once again.

John Steinberg

Student Life Editor

Even when all the frustrations and effort I put into this book are considered, I cannot think of a better reward than being a part of this year's Heritage staff. Hectic deadlines, picture retakes and disagreements all seem trivial when I look at the final product.

Karen, the idea you had for my section turned out great. Ann, you have been a good, hard-working staff member. It wasn't easy, but it was worth it.

To the student body, I hope you consider this book as worthwhile as I do. May it bring back all the memories of the '79-'80 year.

Lori Johnson

Student Body Editor

I would like to thank Mrs. Hoskins and Mrs. Barber for their help in making yearbook a very worthwhile experience. Who knew that there was so much work put into producing one book!!! However, I've never had so much frustration and worry, mixed with so much satisfaction and fun ever before! I also want to thank all of my fellow editors: Karen, Sharon, Marty, John, Lori and Susan for doing a great job that is worth a lot of credit. Sharon, I'll never forget your help in frustrating moments! Thanks! Karen, thanks for your patience and understanding. Ken and Susie, thank you for all of your help. Good luck, Ken! Scott and the photographers, thanks for your cooperation. There were a few problems . . . but you always came through. To the rest of the staff: Although I didn't see much of you, being exiled to the closet, thanks for being so cooperative when we needed your help. Being an editor has meant a lot to me and the staff that I had to work with was terrific. The work and the time put into this book by everyone is rarely to never appreciated. However, the effort makes this book solely ours. I know what a great job everyone has done, and the hours that were put into this book. Thanks for your help. Heritage '79-'80 will live on forever. We've found out spot!

Allyson Beardsley

Art/Business Editor

The first thing I would like to do is say thanks, Mom. Thanks for listening to me scream and cry. You are the only one who knows what I went through this year. What am I going to do next year.

Next, I would like to thank Ms. Linda Barber and Editor Karen Samuels. You also put up with my ranting and raving and helped me through sixth hour. You both pulled through this year better than I. Thanks also to Allyson, John, Lori, Marty, Scott and Sharon as fine editors of their respective staffs.

When I think of all the hair-pulling, tears and worrying, I ask myself if it was worth going through. Then I pick up a Heritage and thumb through the shiny paper memories bound by a green and gold cover. And I see a part of me in the copy I wrote and the pictures I took. And I think that it was worth it.

I learned about teamwork and deadlines and artwork and the creation of a large publication — all in room 195. Mrs. Hoskins — you were a super teacher. I wish you luck in all you do. And Ms. Barber — I wish you all the luck in the world for next year. Maybe next year will be a bit easier.

Lastly, I want to say how I've enjoyed my three years at South — especially my senior year. Thanks, friends for your support and smiles. And thanks Mom and Dad for being there. You made it a lot easier!
